DISTRICT ESTIMATES

Secretary Gage Recommends a Cut of Nearly $3,000,000.

TO KEEP WITHIN THE REVENUES

Commissioner Macfarland Expects Congress to Make Ample Provision.

AUDITOR TIMME'S LETTER

The Secretary of the Treasury, in transmitting to Congress the estimates for the general government, recommends that the amount asked by the Commissioners for the District of Columbia, $10,441,481.97, be reduced in round figures to $7,500,000. The reduction thus recommended by the Secretary is $2,941,481.97.

When the matter was called to the attention of Commissioner Macfarland, president of the District board of Commissioners, today, he said that the Commissioners would endeavor to present the matter of District that ample provision would be made for the support and improvement of the District of Columbia, as was done last year. Secretary Gage does not specify which departments of the District shall suffer from the reduction he recommends, but merely suggests that the total amount of appropriations be kept within $7,500,000, as he believes that is all the District revenues justify. For the current fiscal year Congress allowed the District $8,197,608.97, regardless of the fact that the revenues will be inadequate to meet one-half the amount. The Secretary makes no comment on the estimate of $326,016 asked by the Commissioners for the water department. That department of the local government provides sufficient revenue to cover the total of the appropriation.

The estimates of the Commissioners, calling for $10,441,481.97 for the next fiscal year, are transmitted by the Secretary of the Treasury in full. In conclusion, however, he recommends the reduction as stated above, with the following explana-

"In view of the considerable actual indebtedness of the District of Columbia, amounting on June 30, 1901, to $716,155.27, and its probable further increase under laws already enacted to $1,300,000 on June 30, 1902, exclusive of items chargeable to the District for extension of streets, for highway bridge across Potomac river and for Baltimore and Ohio railroad terminals, the Secretary of the Treasury withholds his approval of the estimates as submitted by the Commissioners for the fiscal year 1903, and recommends that they be reduced to $7,500,000, one-half of which is equal to the estimated revenues of the District for the same period.

"The reduction thus proposed will operate to bring appropriations for the support of the District within the restrictions provided by existing law, to wit:

"To the extent to which Congress shall approve of said estimates Congress shall appropriate the amoung of 50 per centum thereof; and the remaining 50 per centum of such approved estimates shall be levied and assessed upon the taxable property and privileges in said District other than the property of the United States and the Dis-trict of Columbia. " (Act June 11, 1878). Continuing, Secretary Gage says: "The revenues raised by the District during the last fiscal year, exclusive of water taxes, amounted to $3,384,962.90; the amount estimated for the current fiscal year is placed at $3,500,000, and there is no apparent indication that the revenues for the next fiscal year will exceed the estimate of $3,750,000.

as last," he said, "in making up the esti-mates for Congress of the appropriations needed for the next fiscal year, the policy of asking for what is really necessary, re-gardless of the possible deficit due to the in regard to the water supply. The total amount required for what ought to be done in the next fiscal year is larger than ever, and larger than the revenues oan clusive use for street extensions, and that Congress should meet this, and also the cost of extraordinary projects, by advances from the federal treasury, of course, with-fore. Doubtless Congress will do at least as well for the District at the coming session. I believe it will do even better. The new interest of the country, and therefore of plans for the Improvement and beautifica-tion of the District. The Commissioners, acting under this hope, will ask and expe large things of Congress."

Secretary Gage, in withholding his approval of the District estimates, refers Congress to the report of the auditor for the ury, is the following letter from Auditor Timme of the Treasury Department to the tions other than for the water department, and the revenues of the District other than from water taxes, up to and inclusive of June 30, 1901, as stated by this office and mo, shows a deficit in revenues to the amount of $716,155.27 to meet the portion of streets, amounting thus far to $451,325.46, or the amount of $735,245.87 which has already been awarded in the case of the exready been awarded in the case of the ex-tension of 16th street, though not yet ad-vanced, thus making something over $1.100,-000, which Congress has, by the act of Feb-ruary 11, 1901, made a debt due the United States, to be paid in four equal annual in-stallments, beginning with the year 1903, with interest at the rate of 2 per cent. Onefourth of this latter amount, with interest, should therefore be added to the estimated deficit on July 1, 1903, as an item to be taken care of from the revenues for the year beginning on that date.

year beginning on that date.

"There are also two other items which should be considered in connection with these estimates for 1903. The act of February 12, 1901, providing for terminal improvements, Baltimore and Potomac railroad, carries an appropriation of $588.000 for a highway bridge. propriation of $568,000 for a highway bridge across the Potomac river, one-half of the cost of which is to be borne by the District. Of this appropriation only $3,500 has thus far been advanced, the half of which sum is charged against the District in the account recently stated.

"The other item is contained in the act, also dated February 12, 1901, providing for terminal improvements, Baltimore and Ohio railroad. This act provides that, beginning on July 1 next, after the passage of the act, the Commissioners of the District shall pay into the treasury, from the revenues of the District, the sum of $150,000. and the same sum annually thereafter until the amount of $750,000 shall have been

'So that, allowing for the revenues for 1903, the most liberal sum, say $3,750,000, if there is to be charged against it on July 1, 1902, the beginning of that fiscal year, the deficit which will apparently exist at that time on account of "general expenses $1,300,000, together with the several other items enumerated, which Congress has specifically directed shall be made a charge, which will amount in round numbers to something over $800,000, if the award on account of the extension of 16th street is paid, and the two railroad terminal improvements are carried out as provided for, or a total of $2,100,000, it will be seen that there will be less than $1,800,000 of revenues which can be applied to the appropriations for general expenses for 1903. "It is at least clear that following the definite lines which Congress has laid down as to the expenditures for the District government in the act of June 11. 1878, which contemplates that the amount shall not exceed the sum for which the revenues are sufficient to pay one-half, and in the recent special acts permitting it to get advances in excess of the revenues pro-vided, the United States is reimbursed in full within a certain prescribed period, if the appropriations for 1903 are made for figures estimated by the Commission-the account between the United States and the District will show at the close o that fiscal year a larger debt on the part of the District than it is estimated will exist at the close of the fiscal year 1902.

"In fact, with so large a debit balance to start the year with, which, under existing law, is to be met by the revenues of that year, even if appropriations should be made for that year for two and one-half millions less than the figures presented by the Commissioners, there would still be an insufficient amount of available revenue to pay the District's portion, thus demonstrating that even under the most favor-able calculations the debt now existing on the part of the District is likely to grow unless Congress comes to its relief. "A partial relief from the above condition might be afforded by extending the period for reimbursing the United States for advances made for street extensions from that rescribed by the act of February 11, 1901. "In the matter of interest which the act of February 11, 1901 (an act to authorize advances from the treasury of the United States for the support of the government of the District of Columbia), provides shall be paid from the District revenues, begin-ning with the fiscal year 1903, on such balance as is shown to be due the United States on that date, it is not entirely clear whether Congress intended that this interest should be charged on the entire excess of advances after crediting the portion payable by the United States, or only such part of the excess as relates exclusively to appropriations for street extensions, which these several acts provide shall be borne wholly by the District revenues. In figures heretofore used the interest problem has only been reckoned upon this latter class of appropriations, but it will be seen that the revenues to be credited on June 30, 1902, will fall far short even of the District's portion of the appropriations Congress should so state. And again, if only advances on account of appropriations chargeable in their entirety to the District, or the excess thereof over the revenues, are to bear interest, then the order in which the if these appropriations for street exten-sions should be charged first, and the order of charging them heretofore is a matter of departmental practice and not law, then there would be no excess in this class of advances, but it would be entirely on account of advances from appropriations for THE REED RULES.

Reed rules, with certain minor modificacations, was adopted. The principal changes

"The regulations adopted March 8 and consideration of pensions, claims and other lect committee on census shall become a permanent standing committee, to consist nent standing committee of nine members and be known as the committee on industrial arts and expositions; the select com-mittee on examination and disposition of documents of the last Congress shall be continued during the coming Congress." The caucus then adjourned without touching upon any questions of policy.

A PERMANENT CENSUS

Meaning of the Establishment of a Select Committee.

Among the members of the House the establishment of the select committee on the census, authorized by the republican caucus Saturday, is believed to forecast legislation making the census bureau a permanent department of the executive branch tions for its maintenance.

favor by senators and representatives, many of whom have urged it in the past. It is expected that Representative Hopkins of Illinois will be the chairman of the permanent committee, as he was one of th select committee.

THE TREASURY SURPLUS.

aker Henderson, in his address to his republican colleagues before the caucus Saturday, when accepting the renomination for presiding officer of the House, made some significant remarks about the surplus

"We will require all of the wisdom we possess," he said, "and all the patriotism, for we have a great danger to confront us for we have a great danger to confront us continuously, and that is the surplus in the treasury. I appeal to my colleagues, republicans, to keep in mind that this is a danger, and if we can be wise in the presence of that danger we will find approval from the American people.

"American people do not expect any niggardliness in the treatment of matters that American people do not expect any nig-gardliness in the treatment of matters that they require. I do not counsel that, but I counsel that conservative consideration of every question which should be observed at all times, without reference to the hundred million that we are soon to have."
